We're Back To Our "Regular Rotation" (and it sure feels good!)

Okay, so you're wondering "what in the heck do these photos above have to do with this issue?" Well, dear FANS, Issue #17 marks a few things (and we hope that you agree...well at least some of you!):

- Those kid-filled yellow limousines are back on the roads in droves!
- That "Covid commute" has come to an end and your twenty-mile, 70 minute commute came back with a vengeance. ☹️
- Summer beachtime has given way to prepping for the pumpkin patch
- Artemus Founder's recent catch was, well, a bit underwhelming.

So, FAN's...we welcome you back to our bi-weekly rotation and look forward to your contributions!

Have You Authored any Books?

Let us feature your product...in time for "holiday gift buying season"!

So, we're going to turn the "FANs Weekly Summary" (sometime in November) into a marketplace of sorts! (hint, this is where you come in). Here's what we're going to do:

- In early November, we'll showcase all of our FANs' books
- We'll include a very short narrative that you provide about your piece
- We'll include the link to where others can purchase your book

YOUR ACTION: Please send us the following: (1) title of your book, (2) very short writeup about the book, (3) image of the book, (4) link to where the book can be purchased (we assume that Amazon.com may be the place...but let us know!)

Apple ships urgent patch for FORCEDENTRY zero days

Apple on Monday rolled out fixes for a pair of iOS and macOS security defects alongside a warning that these issues belong in the "actively exploited" zero-day category. As is customary, Apple did not provide any additional details on the live attacks beyond crediting Citizen Lab for one of the discoveries, a major clue the patch covers the FORCEDENTRY zero-click malware attacks seen targeting political activists in Bahrain. The FORCEDENTRY attacks, documented here by Citizen Lab, includes an iOS zero-click exploit for iMessage that bypasses Apple's 'BlastDoor' sandbox to plant the Pegasus spyware on iPhones.

FAN Author Spotlight: Jim Lawler

“Living Lies”

Artemus FAN, Jim Lawler’s first espionage novel, "Living Lies," was just published, and the E-Book version was released ten days ago on Amazon. The hard-copy paperback versions will be available 1 November and are available now for pre-ordering.

"Living Lies" is an enthralling story about espionage, human frailty, and loyalty. The plot focuses on a covert Iranian nuclear weapons program, as written by a senior CIA operations officer whose career was devoted to battling the spread of weapons of mass destruction. He also led the CIA team which disrupted the deadliest nuclear weapons network in history. This is the first installment of a series of espionage thrillers.

The story begins as the U.S. is eagerly pursuing negotiations with Iran regarding their nuclear weapons program. A well-placed source in the Iranian delegation provides seemingly critical intelligence on their positions after he volunteers to a gullible CIA officer. The Iranian source, however, is a double agent controlled by Iran's Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps. A more talented CIA officer, Lane Andrews, recruits a legitimate source. His source discovers the stark truth in Iran and reports back at great risk to himself. Lane struggles in vain to convince the CIA that there is a double agent influencing the negotiations, but the U.S. and Iran strike a deal. The CIA

Director, a narcissistic billionaire, is delighted that Iran has caved into the U.S. demands. Except it secretly hasn't. "Living Lies" will keep readers on the edge as they embark on a thrilling adventure filled with unexpected twists and turns. Lane must find a way to do the right thing and prevent largescale death and destruction in a world where trustworthiness is nonexistent.
